A spectacular picture book about animals in the forest from dusk to dawn.

Evening has fallen. Swallows are flying to their nests, blackbirds are singing, and moths reveal their surprising colors. When dawn comes, it is time for the night animals to hide again, and for others to awaken. With beautiful naturalistic illustrations, René Mettler invites readers of all ages to marvel at the diversity of living creatures. The six final spreads provide information about the animals encountered in the story.
