A powerful graphic novel to raise awareness about gender equality.

This graphic novel follows the daily life of a fictional family with three children, a 15-year-old and two younger girls aged 8 and 3, confronting readers with vignettes that reveal what is at stake in an egalitarian education.
In this book, 18 illustrated sketches present everyday situations that raise awareness of an issue related to sexism: a boy wanting to dress up as a princess, a girl role-playing as her overwhelmed mother, sexist insults at school. With each sketch, a talking point highlights the issues at stake in this scene, presenting data and important facts, explaining the future impact of certain attitudes on children, and gently guiding readers toward a change in perspective.
