"The migrant crisis destabilizes Europeans, but it should not take away the hope of contributing to a better world."

Since 2014, one and a half million migrants have reached European shores. In the face of this phenomenon, unprecedented in contemporary history and staggering in its scale and duration, Benjamin Stora challenges us with 60 editorial cartoons from all over the world, selected by Cartooning for Peace, that recount the refugees' long journeys, from the reasons that drove them into exile to their daily lives in their host countries.
