A coming-of-age tale told through an unlikely female friendship: a somewhat lost Parisian teen and a young girl from an oppressed minority in Vietnam.

Can two people be friends when everything conspires to keep them apart? Can the stages our adult lives are made of be the same when the lives we lead are very far apart? What is the weight of family legacy? How can we find our way? Daily obstacles, first loves, first jobs, our relationship with our parents... Against the backdrop of a swiftly changing Vietnam, two young women that the world tries to tear asunder form a bond that proves that some questions are universal...
