Discoveries and encounters are the stuff of life. So why stay inside?

Once upon a time, there was a very diligent young writer who stayed locked up in his house all day so he could write. One day, a witch cast a spell on him: from now on, he would always lose the last page of every story he wrote. And since then, that's how it's been: either the final page flies out the window, or it gets sent off to a faraway land. Now, no one likes stories without endings, so the poor writer was ruined and had to sell all his things. He decided to set out and explore the world to seek his fortune. As he traveled, he realized he was making far more friends than when he stayed home. But that was just the first of many surprises awaiting him...
