A world tour of all kinds of new ideas, neighborhoods and ways of living to be found in today's most innovative cities.

All over the world, cities are getting bigger and bigger: so big you can feel a bit lost. In a world where everything changes so quickly, is it even possible to create a city that would suit everyone? Could there be such a thing as a beautiful and practical city? From the Metrocable in Medellín (Colombia), to the Ferme du Rail in Paris (France), or BedZED, the UK's first large-scale, sustainable community with 100 homes, endlessly curious author Didier Cornille explores all kinds of new ideas, neighborhoods, and ways of living in a city or urban area, all in search of solutions to create the perfect city of tomorrow. A pragmatic and positive approach to city life by Didier Cornille.
