A vivid and playful journey of rediscovery! Want to get to know nature better? Watch and listen to the birds around you, even in cities!

I'm a City Bird is an original invitation to listen to and observe over thirty birds that can be found in European cities at different times of the year. Each two-page spread presents a bird's biography, with a great deal of humor and light-heartedness, accompanied by various anecdotes. The book explores sound through a graphic language, created by the author, to recognize and recreate each bird's unique call. There are also several guessing and observation games scattered throughout, such as "Who is the smallest?" Fresh and subtle combinations of deep color bring to life illustrations from a duo who provide images of superb scientific precision.
