An animal fable about climate migration.

A poor, unfortunate horse is stuck at the border. When the seas rose, he had no choice but to leave his native Normandy and head for... Tanzania!

Doesn't this story remind us of the zebra's? In the time of the Great Drought, the zebra undertook a long journey full of hardships toward the lands of the north. But he was soon sent back to his tribe, and the lion made quick work of him!

What if all the animals tried to live together, live smarter? What if they set out to look for a place that would take them all in... a Land of Many Waters?
