Traditional families, blended families, single-parent families, same-sex families, adoptive families, foster families...

This little book talks about all the different types of families and addresses questions of identity and parentage.

There is no such thing as a child without parents! And for every child, their family is unique.

These days, there are so many ways to be a family other than the traditional father/mom/child model. You could be in a single-parent family, a blended family, a same-sex family, an adoptive family or a foster family. Every child experiences something different.

This little book addresses differences and helps children understand family ties in an open and diverse society, so that every child feels good about their family!
