Street Art Context(s) presents a selection of 140 works by artists from all around the world at play in the urban environment.

This book explores how urban artists play with architecture, show their appreciation for a landscape, and bring out the texture or colour of a wall, giving us all a new perspective on what we often overlook. The urban environment is considered not only from a physical perspective, but in a political and societal context. The issues it raises—ecological concerns, violence, pandemics—can be inspiration for particularly striking activist work.
