A powerful tribute to all the children of the world who dream, wherever they are, of somewhere else.

"In my country, when you're poor, you stay poor. In your country, you get scraps from someone else's table. In my country, war rages, and I'm afraid to die. In your country, peace reigns, and you're afraid to live." Fifteen two-page spreads with powerful illustrations and poetic, rhythmic captions depict tragedy and loneliness, but also the hope that lies in the hearts of children who dream, wherever they are, of somewhere else.

This book was published with support from Amnesty International.
