A new picture book in The Wolf in Underpants series, this time humorously tackling the shortcomings of consumerism and overproduction!

The wolf terrorizes the woods and its inhabitants, who live in constant fear of getting bitten on the backside! Or does he? For when he actually shows up in the woods, well... let's just say he's not exactly what everyone imagined. In fact, he's not scary at all! No raised hackles, no glint of madness in his eye, nothing of the sort. But how can the woodland creatures learn to live without fear when it's become all they know?
