Ocean pollution explained in a nicely illustrated picture book for children ages 3 and up.

Out on the polar ice, everything is beautiful and white. But for some time now, our polar bear has been finding odd things in the water. What is going on? The sea brings him everything that people throw in it. More and more, he feels like he's living in... a landfill!

Every year, eight million tons of waste accidentally end up in the sea . But there is a solution! A very simple act that must be inculcated as a reflex from an early age: when you throw something out, THROW IT IN THE TRASH.
