Max's soccer team must welcome a new player: Léa. She's going to prove to be an amazing addition to their lineup!

The coach introduces a new player to the team... but it's a girl! A girl? Max and his friends are depressed: everyone knows girls suck at soccer. But when training starts, Lea turns out to be quite the player. She dribbles past Max without breaking a sweat! Max feels humiliated, being bested by a girl. But when he tells his parents about it that evening, they don't share his feelings. If Lea is good, it's good for the team, right? Max is going to have to change the way he looks at Lea and help the rest of the team do so, too!
