The 2020 Prix Goncourt winner's satirical and darkly humorous novella explores the tragicomic relationship between a man and a much younger woman.

Je m'attache très facilement (I Fall in Love Too Easily) is the withering account of a catastrophic three-day romance: that of a man going on fifty who decides, at the drop of a hat, to spend the weekend in Scotland to be with his girlfriend, who happens to be twenty years his junior and who doesn't really want him to be there, as our hero rightly suspects... But there's no stopping him! The immensely talented Hervé Le Tellier gives us a biting satire of the hilarious misadventures and disappointments of a middle-aged Lothario, in total denial and looking for love in all the wrong places.
