What if love were stronger than death?

When Franck meets the man of his dreams, his happiness is complete. But after their wedding and many blissful years of life together, everything falls apart: his partner has cancer, and soon passes. Before dying, they'd vowed to "stay in touch, even after..." When a messenger butterfly from "the beyond" lands on Franck's shoulder a few days later, he realizes that his soulmate is still by his side. Soon he feels a need to write, to tell the story of their love and the synchronicities between them that saved him from drowning in sorrow. Helping others and being open to spirituality proved the best path toward accepting a loved one's demise.
