Born in a Silicon Valley laboratory, two androids named Carbon and Silicon will bear witness to a turning point in humanity's future.

Born in a Silicon Valley laboratory, two androids named Carbon and Silicon will bear witness to a turning point in humanity's future as technology comes into direct conflict with environmental, economic, and migratory crises. Through their eyes, we rediscover our planet Earth as it reaches the famous point of no return: in Ukraine, a giant wall prevents immigrants from setting foot on Western European soil; in Japan, rising water levels have forced inhabitants to abandon their country; at the North Pole, oil companies have extracted the last remaining fossil fuels.
