An effervescent picture book with a dash of feminism that proudly waves the banners of confidence and loving yourself!

Everyone at school makes fun of Kate. But at home, when she looks in the mirror, she sees so much more: a smart scientist, an expert astronaut, a gifted athlete... and that's not all! Who cares if other people can't see it? Kate believes in herself, and that's all that matters. Antoine Dole's words are short, sweet, and to the point, written as a poem: it's important to love yourself just the way you are. Magali Le Huche's bright illustrations perfectly capture Kate's wild imagination and love of life. An effervescent picture book about confidence and self-esteem, with a dash of feminism!
