A hard-hitting story packed with true feelings. A hymn to freedom and romantic love.

On the day of her sixtieth birthday, Josy refuses to blow out the candles on her cake. Her bags are packed. She's made a decision: she's going to get freedom back by taking off in her old Volkswagen minibus! Even if it means leaving behind her husband and family. In a state of shock, they all blame her for making such a selfish move. But is it really so selfish to listen to that little voice deep inside? Josy soon finds support among new friends who have faced similar scorn and incomprehension from family and society... But will that be enough to stop her from leaving yet again? Perhaps a newfound love can help her find her way...
