A quirky, engaging comedy written in 123 "first pages."

Camille and Laurent are in love. Camille has always dreamed of a big wedding, while Laurent, whose parents divorced when he was young, has sworn never to make a commitment. Out of love, they compromise and agree on a small ceremony. But Camille's parents are zealously determined to nose in on their arrangements.

The big day arrives: will the party deliver on all its promises of happiness?

A joyful story that celebrates, in the span of single day in a single setting, the joys and disappointments of love, with a cast of characters drawn with humor and clever dialogue.
