Pit pat! Here I come, world—step by tiny step!

This mini-format board book for curious little hands invites young children on a journey through the world's many jobs. Pictures on facing pages are designed to start conversations. On the right and the left are people involved in diverse activities in different places: painter, fashion designer, nurse, farmer, factory worker... The jobs, like the locations, may be contrasting or complementary: outdoors or in the office, alone or in teams. Colors and sometimes even scents, and truly global content bring the book alive. This book for first readers ends with two-page spread recapping all the jobs featured earlier—a reminder that work is part of our lives.
