Faced with shortages, the issue of relocalization rears its head in France.

How do we reintroduce industry to a region while continuing to decarbonize our economy?

- Understand what industrialization has done to France with these handy tools. Includes recent figures on 24 hours of industrial production in today's France and French consumer habits.
 - Unpack the interdependent workings of the globalized economy in which France is but a cog.
 - Gain reference points for France's consumer needs and how to meet them.
 - Imagine a way forward: establishing economic independence while taking into account its constraints and limits.
