An enchanting humanist fable about the power of literature.

Clara is a hairdresser in a small Burgundy town. Her daily routine? A melancholy boss, a boyfriend handsome as a Disney prince, and a cat who won't let her pet him. Time goes by, clients chitchat at the hair salon, hits play on the radio's nostalgia station... until one day, Clara meets a man who will change her life: Marcel Proust. Tender, ironic, and endearing, this liberating tale is also a splendid tribute to the tremendous power of books.
