A fine, sharp, and funny psychological analysis, with characters who embody intimate issues and come to life before our very eyes.

Christine, a chef and a food writer, has decided that now is the time to lose weight. To do so, she heads to a clinic in southern Spain, where she meets three colorful women and one mysterious man. The days go by and destinies become intertwined as secrets are revealed and events take us into the heart of this exclusive wellness center. We follow Christine as she explores the often hilarious details of an intimate world, with its various programs and treatments. But this closed-door setting also becomes the backdrop to a very human drama, with trouble and mystery brewing as the character all develop in highly unexpected ways, portrayed with both psychological acuity and a keen sensitivity.
