Love, friendship, and arranged marriage—a faithful and nuanced exploration of human relationships through Séraphine Menu's colorful heroines.

Louise is spending two months in London with her cousin Ali, whom she hasn't seen in years. Love, friendship, a pastry-making contest, henna tattoos, costume parties, and family secrets abound for the roommates—a comforting and luminous summery in-between time that is the backdrop to Séraphine Menu's sincere and benevolent exploration of human relationships.
