A series of diaries written by 10-year-old Gaspard as he is faced with all the relatable struggles of young boys.

We can't cut down more trees just to pour more concrete on our planet. We have to do something. A protest is a good idea, right?

It's never too early to make your voice heard. But I have a few questions to answer first:

- Is it still a protest if there are only three of us?
- What slogans should we put on our signs?
- Do we have to inform our parents or the President?
- Do I really have to be the one to write a speech?

Ongoing series, 3 titles published.
