After the critical acclaim for Permacity, the understated and eco-friendly city of the future, here comes its sequel, out in the countryside!

We're going to see Grandma and Grandpa! First surprise: their farm has been completely renovated. Their town has changed too! There's the glass roof over the plaz now, and new pathways. Parking structures and vacant lots have quite recently given way to compact, understated, eco-friendly neighborhoods that play well with the old city center. This time, Camille isn't looking for her cat but her grandmother, the mayor of this fascinating multigenerational Permavillage. Be où se côtoient les générations. Beyond the food-producing garden belt is a protected natural preserve, and the ground is no longer paved with cemet. Materials from the former mall and silo have been salvaged, and they have been turned into mini-permacities.
