A humanist plea to take lessons from the COVID crisis to heart.

This book puts a number of issues into perspective: COVID news propaganda and brainwashing, neoliberalism and public health, the misdeeds of transhumanism, limitations on our freedoms of choice and expression, an impoverished unilateral vision of immunity...

Instead, it suggests permaculture on a humane scale, autonomy in diet and health, activism in the arts... A far cry from the media's simplistic reflections, Louis Fouché takes the high ground for a bird's-eye view, calling upon each of us to take lessons from the recent crisis to heart.
