What if the setting sun on the horizon was an irresistible red ball?

One summer evening, as the sun is about to sink behind the horizon, a little monkey bursts out of the forest... and grabs it! But the giraffe soon catches up. As does the elephant! And then the camel... Page after page, the red setting sun (which has turned into a ball) is passed from paw to horn, to snout, to beak... Little ones can try and guess who has caught the red ball before turning the page and discovering the next cheeky animal!
